How to build a videobeamer out of a smartphone? What happens, if the kids don't like mothers new lover? Are there always the good guys chatting in chatrooms? Whats the effect of magic potion made from dinosaur eggs to Berlin citizens? Answers will be given at the 23rd REC-Filmfestival from the 3rd to 6th of December 2014, at the new venue: the historical cinema of the former UFA plant in Berlin-Tempelhof.

REC for Kids is the international competition for the films from kids and youth, age 6 to 15. In this competition 43 films from 13 countries will be screened. (For the young german audience the films will have a live german voiceover.) The programs will be moderated by an experienced mediapedagogic, so the art of making film and the topics of the films will be explained and discussed with the kids in an understandable age-based way.

On Saturday, the 6th of December selected films for all ages will be screened in a family-program.

On top of that interesting workshops are offered, for example how to make animated films, this workshop is run by "Studio DA" from St.Petersburg. And there is the radiostudio in a bus – in this remodeled urban bus kids and youth can try to work as reporters, editors or sound engineers.

Beside "REC for Kids" there are two more competitions:

"Lichtspiele – Das Berliner Jugendfilmfestival", our new partner, screens up-to-date productions from Berlin pupil in the categories "Under-16" and "Over-16".

"REC internationales junges Filmfestival" screens 35 films from 14 countries, made by ambitious young directors, age 16 to 27.

At all 95 films from young directors out of 24 countries will be screened in four days at the historical cinema of the ufaFabrik.

On Saturday at 4 p.m. the awarding ceremony for all competitions takes place – golden and silver clips with a total value of more than 2.000 € and other rewards will be handed over. Afterwards the awarded films will be screened.
